

Transferring Semantix Roaming Studio Licenses

Roaming Studio Licenses are node-locked licenses. This guide describes the procedure to use when you wish to transfer one such node-locked license ("old" installation or node) to another machine ("new" installation or node).

In general transferring a license consists of two parts:

- deactivating the "old" installation by removing the license from the "old" node (remember to keep the removal code you'll be given).
- installing a trial version of Roaming Studio on the "new" node and activating it.

The procedure depends on which Roaming Studio version you have. Select Help/About from the menu, and look at the dialog box that comes up:

If the version reported is 1.1.x or later, follow the steps described in "Transferring Roaming Studio versions 1.1.x and later". Otherwise, follow the steps described in "Transferring Roaming Studio versions 1.0.x".

Transferring Roaming Studio versions 1.0.x

To transfer a Roaming Studio license from an existing to a new node, you will need to:

1. find the activation code of the node-locked license (it was mailed to you at the time of the original activation and you should have kept it as per the activation instructions)
2. download the deactivation program:
www.tapeditor.com/deactivation.zip
3. unzip it and copy it on the machine whose copy of the Roaming Studio you wish to deactivate.
4. run deactivation.exe

5. the "Semantix Roaming Studio Deactivation" dialog pops up:

Semantix Roaming Studio Deactivation

Site code: E05ACDD2 MID: A5BB-0EBC-495A-33FD

Days left: N/A Uses left: N/A

Enter application

Unlock application Activation code: [Empty]

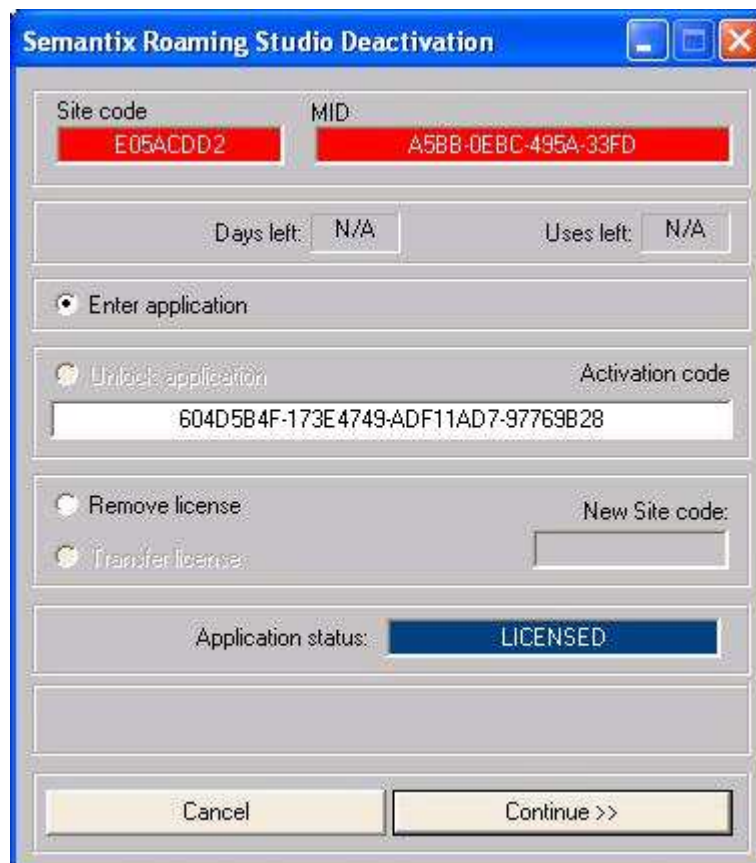

Remove license New Site code: [Empty]

Transfer license:

Application status: LICENSED

Cancel Continue >>

6. enter the old activation code:

Semantix Roaming Studio Deactivation

Site code: E05ACDD2 MID: A5BB-0EBC-495A-33FD

Days left: N/A Uses left: N/A

Enter application

Unlock application Activation code: 604D5B4F-173E4749-ADF11AD7-97769B28

Remove license New Site code: [Empty]

Transfer license:

Application status: LICENSED

Cancel Continue >>

7. select the radio box "Remove license":

8. press "Continue >>"
9. you are prompted to confirm that you indeed wish to permanently remove the Roaming Studio license from that node:

10. press "Yes" if you indeed wish to permanently remove the Roaming Studio license from that node. VERY IMPORTANT: Restraint from pressing the "Enter" or "Return" key twice as you will need to note down the number that appears, only once, on the next screen.
11. the removal code appears. DO NOT PRESS "OK" BEFORE YOU COPY the removal code:

12. write down the removal code or if you prefer, select it and copy it into the clipboard.
13. at this point you have successfully removed the Semantix Roaming Studio license from your old node. Note that the Semantix Roaming Studio itself is not removed, just deactivated. A locked version of the Roaming Studio will remain which you may activate (if you so chose) in the future.
14. to install an activated Roaming Studio to a new node, follow the instructions on the "Activating Roaming Studio" guide (without the paying part of course) and remember to sent the removal code along with the [Site code / MID] of the new machine to activate@tapeditor.com
15. We will then respond with an email containing the activation code for the new machine.

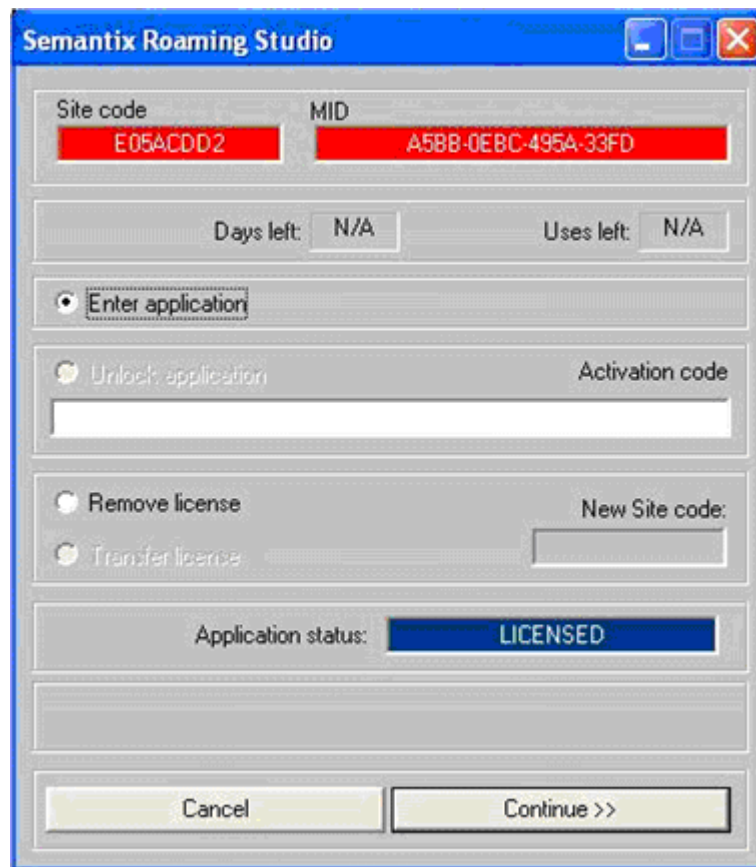

Transferring Roaming Studio versions 1.1.x and later

To transfer a Roaming Studio version 1.1.x and later license, from an existing to a new node, you will need to:

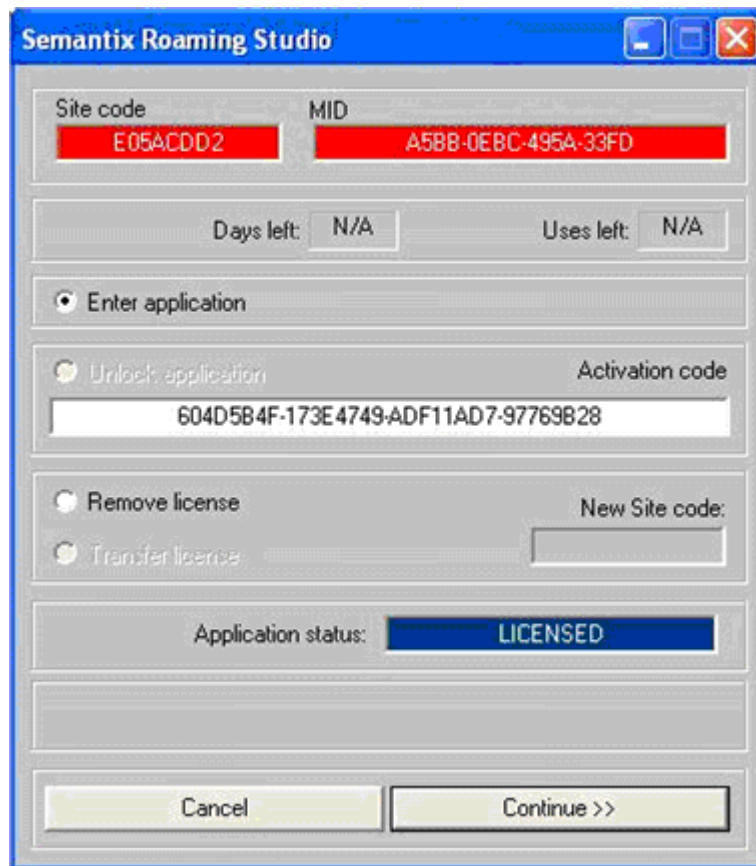

1. find the activation code of the node-locked license (it was mailed to you at the time of the original activation and you should have kept it as per the activation instructions)
2. toggle Scroll-Lock at your keyboard (in most keyboards this will also toggle a LED):

3. launch Roaming Studio
4. the "Semantix Roaming Studio Deactivation" dialog pops up:

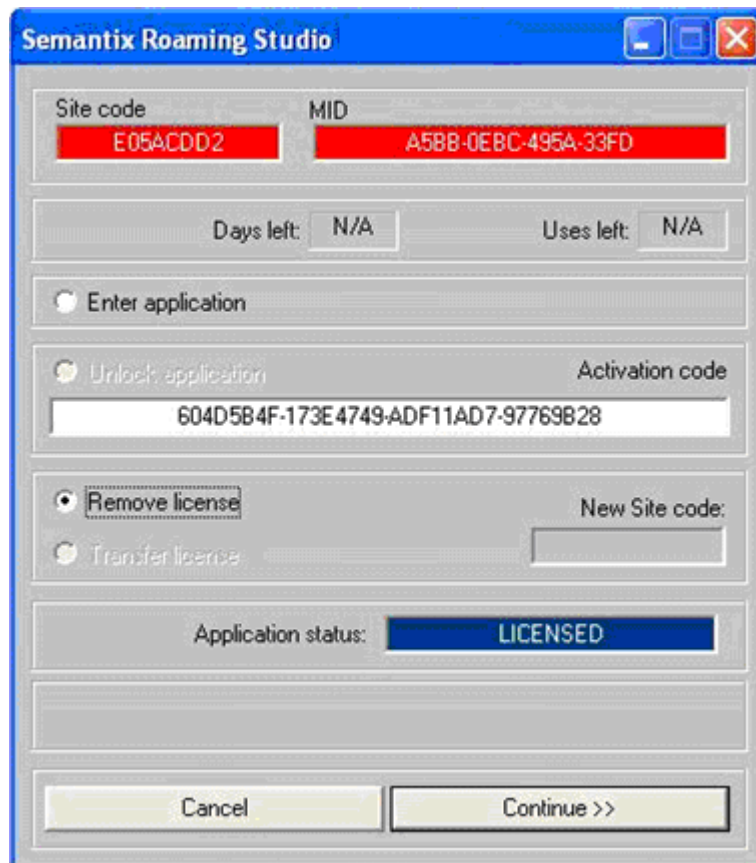

5. enter the old activation code:

The screenshot shows the Semantix Roaming Studio dialog box. It has a blue title bar with the text "Semantix Roaming Studio" and standard window control buttons. The main area contains several sections: "Site code" with the value "E05ACDD2" and "MID" with the value "A58B-0EBC-495A-33FD", both on red backgrounds; "Days left: N/A" and "Uses left: N/A"; a radio button for "Enter application" which is selected; a radio button for "Unlock application" with an "Activation code" field containing "604D5B4F-173E4749-ADF11AD7-97769B28"; a radio button for "Remove license" and a "New Site code:" field; a radio button for "Transfer license"; and an "Application status:" field with a blue button labeled "LICENSED". At the bottom are "Cancel" and "Continue >>" buttons.

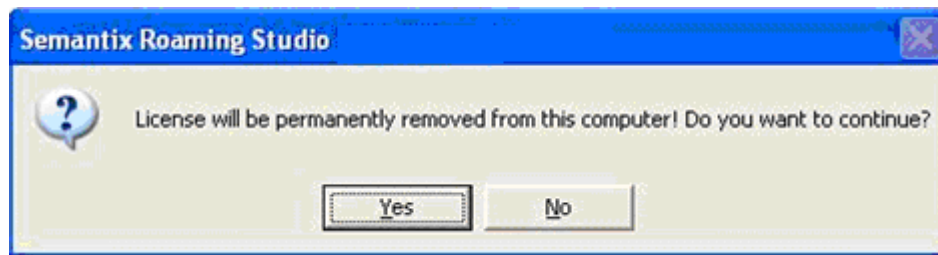

6. select the radio box "Remove license":

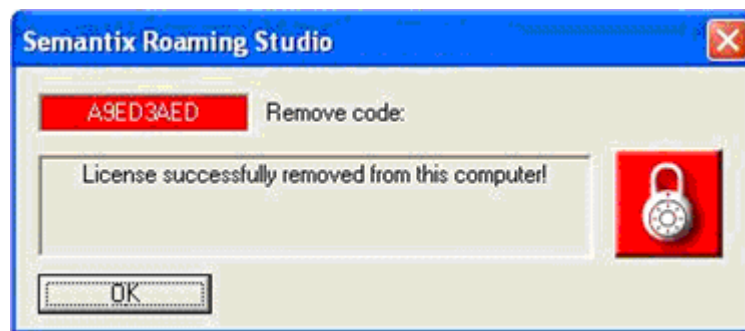

This screenshot is identical to the previous one, but the radio button for "Remove license" is now selected, and the "Remove license" text is highlighted with a dashed border. The "Enter application" radio button is now unselected.

7. press "Continue >>"

- you are prompted to confirm that you indeed wish to permanently remove the Roaming Studio license from that node:

- press "Yes" if you indeed wish to permanently remove the Roaming Studio license from that node. VERY IMPORTANT: Restraint from pressing the "Enter" or "Return" key twice as you will need to note down the number that appears, only once, on the next screen.
- the removal code appears. DO NOT PRESS "OK" BEFORE YOU COPY the removal code:

- write down the removal code or if you prefer, select it and copy it into the clipboard.
- at this point you have successfully removed the Semantix Roaming Studio license from your old node. Note that the Semantix Roaming Studio itself is not removed, just deactivated. A locked version of the Roaming Studio will remain which you may activate (if you so chose) in the future.
- to install an activated Roaming Studio to a new node, follow the instructions on the "Activating Roaming Studio" guide (without the paying part of course) and remember to sent the removal code along with the [Site code / MID] of the new machine to activate@tapeditor.com
- We will then respond with an email containing the activation code for the new machine.